

SIXTH INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF BIOCHEMISTRY
SIXIÈME CONGRÈS INTERNATIONAL DE BIOCHIMIE
NEW YORK CITY • JULY 26—AUGUST 1, 1964

Office of the Secretariat: 9650 Wisconsin Avenue, Washington 14, D.C., U.S.A.

CABLE ADDRESS: BIOCHEMCON, WASHINGTON, D. C.

October 4, 1963

Dr. Charles Yanofsky
Department of Biology
Stanford University
Stanford, California

Dear Charley:

We are very sorry to learn that you cannot attend the Congress next July.

Since the presentation of your work in the Symposium on Genetic Control of Protein Synthesis was to have constituted an important part of the Symposium, your decision not to participate is a severe set-back to the program. Under these circumstances, if you cannot reconsider your decision, it would seem to be your responsibility to suggest an alternate to cover your work.

Please send me your suggestions by return mail. We would like you to be satisfied with your representation. What about Crawford? Dave Bonner could certainly do it well, but one of the newer generation, directly involved might be preferable?

Yours,

He was with me as a postdoctoral for 3 years. E. L. Tatum

Dear Ed,

Your suggestion is a fine one, I certainly would be pleased to have Bruce Carlton (now at Yel - Biology) present the work of my group. He could discuss colinearity of gene structure & protein structure & most of the material in protein structure would be his own. If you like you could let him talk in the program as Carlton & Yanofsky.
